of the young errand boy who lay buried among the ruins of the leather store. Now the electric light went up, the loco-Flinn divided his men among the of-ficials of the Department of Public Safety. Chief Brown, Commissioner Andrews, Sheriff McCaudless, Inspector McAleese, Superintendent Gamble Weir and Detective McKelvey all volunteered their assistance, and in a few moments the work began in earnest. One gang was started in the Thoma building, they numbered about 12. The largest gang was sent into the Willey building, about 15 men started in the back of Weldin's store and a similar number went to the front and cleared out the books. They were all conveyed to Gillespie's store in a large wagon. Everything went along like clock work and with a rapidity that was marvelous. The enormous iron pillars in the Willey building, the big beams, and the large cornice stones were hauled out by the derrick. An open space was soon made in that part of the cellar fronting on Diamond alley, and now five men armed with shovels began to pile up the dirt behind them, advancing inch by inch, step by step, toward the rear. Here the men were hauling the larges spars and beams away on their shoulders to pile it up along the walls of the Germania Bank

THE SHOCKING DISCOVERY. The men in the cellar of Thoma's store were working equally hard. At about 7:30 o'clock they struck the bottom, and now a fresh impetus seemed to take hold of them, for they knew that Albert Goettman could not be far off. On and on they worked their way along the floor of the cellar from the ont toward the back. The bricks, rubbish and dirt threw up great clouds of dust. The spades never stopped for a moment. The men seemed to have lost the feeling of They had no time to breathe it seemed. Bigger and bigger grew the heap of debris as they threw it behind, and far-ther and farther they got toward the end of Several large bales of leather were now found and thrown out of the hole. Every time one of these pieces of leather was struck the men all looked thinking they had got at a body. But no! Their patience and endurance was to be tested for a still

"I have got a foot of him," at last went up the voice of one of the men, and now the men all stopped to take a deep breath. But not because they were tired. No! It was to increase their courage. That was at 20 minutes to 9 o'clock and within five minutes the limbs of a corpse were hare.

"I believe there are two people here," said one of the men," because look how far the legs are apart. Gradually the lower part of the body

Coroner McDowell and his assist-ants took charge of the body, which was taken to the parents' home, 160 Ridge avenue, Allegheny.

The discovery of this body seemed to encourage the men in the other places, especially in the rear of Weldin's, where it was thought at any moment the dody of Dr. Reed or that of Charles McKeown might At about half-past 9 two hats were brought out of the rubbish in Weldin's store. "That is the hat of Dr. Reed." cried the men simultaneously.

But it was a mistake. A gentleman who seemed to know what he was talking about 'No, this is a brown felt hat, and it for this paper whether it had been possi-ble for the boy Goettman to have lived under the ruins until Wednesday night. "No," he replied, "that boy was dead immediately after the crash took place and debris fell down on him."

THE PACKER'S REMAINS.

About midnight the workmen came upon the body of Charles McKeown, a packer in Weldin's book store. He was found among the ruins immediately in the rear of the store. His face was easily recognized, although his head was crushed almost flat. The brains protruded out through the top of the skull. There was a small hole in his neck under the chin where a piece of brass collar button had been driven. His left hand was crushed to a jelly and his right foot was almost torn from the leg. His whole appearance was very ghastly and caused a shudder even from the physicians who viewed the body at the morgue. Keown was about 35 years of age and lived with his sister on the Southside. The latter was inquiring for him at the Homeopathic vesterday. He had a brother who was slightly injured in the accident. Contractor Huckenstein said last night that he had heard from all of his men except Galluce, Shifthouse and Blendinger. It is supposed that the bodies of these workmen are still in the ruins. Mr. Shitthouse is a young man, and was married about two months ago to a young lady in Butler county. He had a home on East street. One of the clerks in Weldin's store informed a DISPATCH reporter yesterday that he was positive that an elegantly dressed lady was in the store when the crash came, and nobody saw her get out. She was standing near the elevator at the time, and the clerk is sure her body will be found in the cellar. As no inquiry has been made about her, it is supposed that she was a stranger in the city.

The search for the body of Dr. Reed was kept up all day and last night, but up untiaidnight no trace of it had been discovered. midnight no trace of it had been discovered. His son and daughter-in-law were at the ruins nearly all the time, and tried to buoy up each other's spirits with hope. It is ex-pected that the body will be found before

TWO MORE BODIES FOUND.

Two more bodies were found in the ruins of the Willey building at 1:30 this morning. They were crushed beyond recognition. They were not taken out at this writing but will be taken to the morgue as soon as they can be removed from the ruins. They were supposed to be with a number other workmen who are said to have been sitting by a stove eating their dinner when the disaster occurred. This makes 13 bodies recovered.

His head was smashed flat and his limbs broken and body terribly crushed. His brother identified the remains at the morgue by means of his clothes and sundry articles in the pockets among them a watch, badly battered, and a little purse recently given him by his employer. Quiet reigned at the Homeopathic Hospital, where most of the wounded are, last night. No new patients had been received since the night before, and all those under treatment was laid bare, and it was found that there | were doing as well as could be expected. The was laid bare, and it was found that there was only one person.

Sheriff McCandless, who had been standing on the wall and watched the men digging the debris away from the body, now jumped down, and, requesting the men to stand aside, went up and taking hold of the body pulled it out.

There at last lay Albert Goettman, the boy after whom everybody had searched, the child who had been buried under a mass of ruins for almost 36 hours. He had been supposed to he cased within some leather, and his voice was supposed to have been heard on Wednesday night. There he lav a battered mass of almost unrecognizable humanity. His head was as flat as a cake, his arms were crossed under his back, and one of his legs came over his shoulder. It was an awful sight. Everybody shuddered at it. Even the electric light above went partly out as if to hide from view the mangied remains of the boy. The police then took charge of the body, and the patrol wagon conveyed him to the morgue.

ANOTHER BODY FOUND.

Sheriff McCandless, who had been standing on the wall and watched the men dig during the night, retired early to get some much needed rest. They were nearly worn out with the unusual tax upon their strength during the preceding 24 hours. Drs. Redding and Seip were in charge, and kept careful watch of their patients. Dr. J.W. McClelland, of the hospital staff, was also present during the evening.

In the wards everything was quiet and well in order, and the most of patients were sleeping. The scene under the dim light was a did and his body had been removed from the main ward. Mr. Slack, the Superintendent, said many calls had been received during the day and a good many telephone inquiries had come in. The friends of the victims generally had borne themselves bravely and even cheerfully. By 8 o'clock in the evening the inquiries had about ceased. Mr. Slack said he had received many inquiries for Carroll and Brown, neither of whom were there. Late in the evening a lady came in and inquired for a man named Wright, whose home was out of town, where she did not state. He had left home Wednesday morning and had come to town. He had not returned home at 6:30 last evening. He had left a bill of goods in a store on Diamond alley, near the wrecked building, and had not been seen since. Wright was not at the hospital.

ALL DAY LONG.

How the Work Among the Rules Yesterday Was Facilitated-Walls Removed, and the Progress Made by Rescuing Parties. At 5 o'clock yesterday morning an engine and derrick were erected at the ruins. In this way the work of removing the large timbers and iron posts was greatly lightened. The west side wall of the Willey building was torn down at noon. This additional debris will delay the search for bodies, but as it was in such a dangerous condition it had to be removed. A young man named Pearsall, in the employ of Jos.

Walton & Co., covered himself with glory in this job. He became disgusted at the manner in which the work was being done and volunteered his services. The offer was accepted and he with the skill of a veteran cowboy, threw a rope over a portion of the wall yet standing. About this time Chief Evans commenced to give him orders. He replied that he would waft a brick in the direction of the Chief if he would interfere with his work. He passed an inch-and-a-half rope around the chimney, blocks and tackle were attached to telegraph poles and the end of the rope wound on the spool of the hoisting engine. The work of pull-ing the chimney down had been tried with a smaller rope, which broke when a strain was placed upon it. The larger rope withstood the strain. The wall fell with a terrible erash, but no one was injured. Mr. Pearsall was asked to take charge of the rescuing party, and his manner of handling men is winning him plenty of praise.

The side wall of the Weldin building has been securely braced. It looked dangerous, and it was thought best to be cautious. The work in Weldin's cellar is going on rapidly. A large gang of men is employed in the work of removing the debris which surrounds the

A matter which created a great deal of comment on the part of the general public yesterday was the fact of Booth & Flinn taking charge of the work of clearing away the debris. A good deal of conjecturing was going on whether they had come voluntarily to do the work for nothing or whether they was paid work for nothing or whether they were paid for their work by the city as has been reported. Several of the prominent officials connected with the Department of Public Safety, who were questioned on the subject, replied in a with the Department of Public Safety, who were questioned on the subject, replied in a very indefinite manner. From what could be gathered through the information, however, there seems no doubt that the city authorities told Booth & Flinn to go ahead with their work and they would see that the firm is paid for its trouble. The rescuing party is not allowed to become hungry. They were fed yesterday at Miller's, Newell's and Bihlman's restaurants, no charge being made for their food.

READY FOR THE INQUEST.

Contractor Huckenstein Says He Will Attend the Investigation of the Disaster-

Legislation to Prevent Accidents. Coroner McDowell impaneled a jury yeserday morning. After reviewing the remains of five of the victims at the morgue they adjourned to the scene of the disaster. The inquest will commence to-day at 10 o'clock. The members of the jury are W. W. Shaw, L. E. Isaacs, T. C. Perrine, T. A. Rowley, George Exler and H. Grant Contractor Huckenstein says he intends to ppear before the Coroner's jury whether he s subpænaed or not. "I was not responsible for the cyclone, "said Mr. Huckenstein 'I had no idea that the walls were unsafe. r I would not have allowed my son to work on the top story. There was no defect in the work, and the plans and specifications were carried out all right. A contractor, when he gives a bond to complete a job, does not say that it shall be finished, cyclone or no cyclone. It is always understood that if nature interferes that that a contractor is not responsible. The material placed in that building was the best in the market and the workmanship could not be excelled, as none but the bes workmen were employed on the building."

Mr. C. G. Dixon, who is the oldest bricklayer in the two cities, says that John Huckenstein has put up the best buildings in this section. Among them are the nov-elty works on Lacock street, Allegheny, which were burned down and afterward re-built at Idlewood; the St. Andrew's Church in Manchester, the St. James' Church, the Seventh Avenue Hotel and other large buildings.

In 'speaking of the accident last night, John Kelly, editor of the Commoner and Glassworker, said: "In the old Trades Assembly we had a bill pending for months which will be presented to the Legislature, and will prevent such accidents in the fut-ure. As the Legislature was not in session at the time, we held the bill over, but it will come up at the next meeting of the newly-organized Trades Council. I have just received a letter from P. J. McGuire, National President of the Carpenters' Union. In the letter he recognizes the necessity of the bill and says he will co-operate with Pittsburg to pass a law preventing the erection of such rickety buildings. It is strange that the new building being erected on Diamond alley, just below the one that caved in, was not blown down. That building was fully exposed as much to the elements, yet it was not shaken. If the proper authorities had attended to their business, and seen that the building was braced properly, the accident would not have occurred. The new Trades Council was organized especially to look after matters of this kind. We will petition the Legislature to enact laws making the loss of Legislature to enact laws making the loss of life and limb on a new building almost impossible."

Councilman Hugh Ferguson says that at the next meeting of Councils he will offer an ordinance making it a criminal offense for contractors to erect less than three walls at the same time. In this instance, he said, the acci-dent would not have occurred had there been a third wall to bind together the too high walls erected.

Architect Stillburg, who drew the plans for the Willey building, says that the destruction of the building was the result of a cyclone or a tornado. The mortar was not dry and the force of the wind was the result.

· IN THE CROWD.

Arrests Made Yesterday at the Scene of the Accident-Incidents of the Day Very

Two young men, who gave their names as James N. Armstrong and John Quinn. were arrested at the corner of Diamond alley and Wood street yesterday afternoon for picking pockets in the crowd. Officer Madison and Inspector Whitehouse made the arrest. Both fought desperately. Armstrong threw a couple of pocketbooks away on the road to Central station. They were recovered. Ope of them was the property of Mrs. Robert Davi, of Sandusky street, Allegheny. Forty-nine dollars were found in Armstrong's pockets.

John Kelly and John Frane were arrested last evening by Detective Sol Coulson in the crowd at the corner of Wood street and iamond alley as suspicious characters. Kelly drew a revolver on the officer, but was promptly collared and locked up. A young man, who was working in one of the rear rooms of a building looking upon the Willey building, says that he counted 13 men on the sixth floor of the building, just before the walls fell. He called a companion's attention to the unlucky number.

As he did so the walls fell. As he did so the walls fell.

The owners of the building occupied by J.
R. Weldin & Co. state their loss will amount to about $5,000. They think the building occupied by Rea Bros. & Co. can be repaired. W.
Thoma, whose son occupied the leather store, says his loss of the building will amount to $7,000. Weldin's loss is placed at about $40,000.

Chief Brown has informed H. Watts & Co.
that they will have to vacate the premises they now occupy, as that building will have to be torn down as well as the Weldin and Rea buildings.

THE NEW OFFICERS FOR NEXT YEAR

The stockholders of the Monongabela Navigation Company held their annual meeting yesterday afternoon in the Grant street building. The election for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, M. agers was submitted. Some important facts were recited, as follows: The year which is past is also remarkable for upon the improvement, the principal part of which is the transportation of coal, which, owing to the very general use of natural gas in this city, is chiefly carried down the Ohio

The amount of coal and slack passed over the improvement during the past year is considerably in excess of that transported during the year 1887, which, however, showed a large falling off from the output of the year 1886, indicating, we think, that the decreased consumption due to the use of natural gas has been more than compensated for by the natural increase of business. A comparative statement of the output of coal and slack from the several pools will prove interesting, and is here several poois will prove interesting, and is he

OPEN ALL DAY AGAIN.

The Druggists Are Not Unanimous, Hence They Will All be Open Again Next Sunday, and Sell Just as They Think

The druggists are going to keep their stores open all day on next Sunday. Thus was decreed at a meeting of the Druggists' Association, yesterday afternoon. Louis Emanuel, the President, read two letters to the members, one from J. F. Neely, the Secretary, who was absent on account of the death of a friend, and one from Mr. F. R. Fleck, of Allegheny. The latter advised the society to keep their stores closed altogether on Sunday, except for prescription business. A note put up in the window to that effect would soon educate the people to the custom.

After the letters were read, Mr. Robert Christy said that he did not think the plan of opening the stores for a few hours in the ming and in the evening would work well, because there was no unanimity of action. He then proposed that in the future every druggist keep open all day, but conhis business to the filling of prescriptions. Being requested to put that as a motion, he did so, and it was unanimously

John Beck, of Wylie avenue, and Mr Doerflinger, said that the partial opening of the drugstores had proved a failure last Sunday. Mr. Beck stated that it would only tend to take customers away from the members of the association and bring them to outsiders. Everybody appeared to agree with that, and the meeting adjourned, after the Secretary was ordered to notify all the druggists of the two cities of the decision.

FOR COURT STENOGRAPHER.

Mesers. Callow and Webster Stand the Competitive Test. L. C. Webster and Alex. Callow are working hard to be made stenographer of the Court of Common Pleas No. 1. The position yields about $4,000 per year. Originally there were five applicants, but the Judges decided to select a man by competitive examination, and the others dropped out.

Callow has already stood the test, and Webster is now being examined by Judge Stowe, who holds the balance of power. Callow is backed by Congressman Dalzell, for whom he worked some years, while Webster is supported by Judge Slagle.

Superintendent of Police Weir and Superintendent of Electricity Morris Mead risited the new Seventeenth ward station house yesterday and made arrangements for putting in the electric wires. They expect the building will be ready for occupancy by the first of February.

Hit by an Engine. A Panhandle freight engine knocked Mrs. Ella Windburg off the track at the Fourth avenue depot yesterday afternoon. Three ribs were broken, and the unfortunate woman was burt internally.

GROCERS' DELINQUENTS.

The Annual Meeting of the Pittsburg Associntion Last Night Full of Very Interest-

The Grocers' Association held its annual meeting last night at its hall, No. 628 Liberty street. There was a fair sprinkling of ladies present and much interest evinced. President J. C. O'Donnell rushed the business on hand. There was a lively election for officers and by a vote of 3 to 1 it was decided that no nominee should be allowed to withdraw his name. After the voting had been done, and while the returning board was ascertaining results, the reports of the various committees were read.

It found that the association had $956 in its treasury. President O'Donnell in his valedictory stated that the association was now solidly on its feet, having $531 more in its treasury than it had one year ago. Of the 800 grocers in the city 375 belong to the ssociation, and Mr. O'Donnell said that not only were they of the best of the guild, but composed at least two-thirds of its

Mr. O'Donnell referred to the success of the agents in collecting bills from delin-quents, and stated that if members had found the agents unsatisfactory, it was be-cause they had not been allowed a fair show of their collecting powers. It seems that by the time a hustling agent gets through with a delinquent, the latter feels as though struck by lightning and drawn through a knot hole. He has no credit left. Treasurer Friday made a brief address rehearsing the history and progress of the body, and delivered a well-chosen speech, in which he set forth the labors of the retiring President, Mr. O'Donnell, to make it a success, and wound up by presenting him with an elegant silver pitcher and goblet Mr. O'Dounell made an appropriate reply.

Mr. S. B. Charters then did the same thing for Secretary R. A. Stevenson, who, like Mr. O'Donnell, refuses to further act, and presented him, Mr. Stevenson, with a cane, pleasantly referring to the fact that, as he had failed to find a wife to lean upon, he might find the present a partial substitute. Mr. Stevenson also did what is expected on such occasions.

Getting back to business Mr. R. C. Dalzell moved the appointment of a committee to meet the Allegheny City Grocers' Asso-ciation and confer with a view of consolidating, stating that delinquents moved back and forth, dodging agents, and the organizations did not exchange delinquent lists. The motion prevailed. The election resulted as follows: President, S. B. Charters; Vice President, W. U. Willet; Treasurer, John H. Friday; Secretary, Henry Daub. For Corresponding Secretary there was a tie vote. John L. Fierst and W. B. Benton received 12 votes ANDREW CARNEGIE TALKS.

His Absence. Mr. Andrew Carnegie just now is the busiest man in the city, as the death of Mr. D. A. Stewart, late Chairman of Carnegie Bros. & Co., and the new arrangement made at the Hartman Steel Company, at Beaver Falls, has caused some confusion in the firm. In addition to this Mr. Carnegie must look after his interests in the South Penn road, and also his interests in the H. O. Frick Company's Coke Works. The wages at these works, as is known, have been 614 per cent higher than at the other ovens in the region, and will continue until February 1.

There was a meeting in the office yester day afternoon, but nothing could be learned of the object or the result. Mr. Carnegie was very busy at 5 o'clock, when a representative of this paper called, and attendants said he could not be seen, but would answer leading questions if they were important. The following questions were reduced to writing and sent in to the

ONLY THREE CLASSES

Allegheny Councils to Remain in the Latter Class at Present.

LIVELY TIME LAST EVENING.

The Common Branch Object to the Decision of Select Council.

CITIZENS AND COUNCILS TO CONFER

At a meeting of Allegheny Select Couneil last night, Mr. Watson, from the Committee on City Charter, presented a report which, opening with the statement that the Supreme Court has declared in favor of three classes of cities, gave the changes that would be made by going into either second or third class, and said that the City Solicitor had prepared an act which, if passed would give Allegheny until 1891 to create the department under the second class charand if by that time the experiment with departments in Pittsburg was not a success a change could be made or a further amendment of the law could be procured. The report concluded with a resolution The report concluded with a resolution directing the Finance Committee and the City Solicitor, with permission to hire other legal advisers if they saw fit, to prepare additional legislation, investigate the subject thoroughly, ascertain the expenses that would fall on the city by going into either class and obtain such other information as would be of interest and report to Councils.

VOICE OF CITIZENS. Mr. Hartman had a resolution which made the committeemen appointed at the citizens' meetings a part of the committee to consider the charter legislation, and he made a speech in favor of his idea. Mr. Watson said he thought the gentleman was a little off. The Charler Commit tee recommended that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee, because it was a to the Finance Committee, because it was a regular committee, and some people thought special committees (Mr. Hartman's resolution called for a special committee) was sometimes appointed for a purpose. The citizens would be welcome to the meetings. Dr. Gilliford moved to amend the resolution by adding that the Citizens' Committee be invited to meet and confer with the Finance Committee.

Mr. Watson accepted this. Then Mr. Hartman raised the point that the resolution bound the committee to the second or third class, and Mr. Watson suggested that Mr. Hartman write something that would do. Mr. Hartman talked for some time, and when he quit President Lindsay told him the resolution was broad enough to cover the whole subject. The resolution was adopted.

NO CENSUS TO BE TAKEN. He Denies Some Reports Circulated During Common Council met and transacted a lot of unimportant routine business. The ordinance awarding the contract to the E. Howard Watch and Clock Company, of Boston, for placing a clock and three bells in the tower of the Carnegie Library was passed. The contract price is $3,475. The Board of Health was authorized to employ two persons to take charge of the new garbage furnace at a salary of $50 a month,

President Hunter then read the report of the Charter Committee and the resolution adopted by Select Council to refer it to the Finance Committee and the City Solicito for a report as to the expense that would be

It was then learned that Select Council had refused to adopt the recommendation of the Finance Committee, to take a municipal census. This kills the matter entirely, and a long discussion was caused. If no census is taken, Allegheny must be classed as a city having 78,000 inhabitants, and is bound were reduced to writing and sent in to the teel magnate:
"Is it true that you purchased Mr. of councils is held, and Allegheny will, of course, be a city of the third class, governed by the laws and charters of other cities in the same class.

City Solicitor Elphinstone was called on for information, but said he had nothing further to say and the action of Select Council was concurred in.

This will make Allegheny a city of the third class, unless the municipal bil is not passed for several weeks and a special meeting of Councils is held. Common Council then adjourned. There will be a meeting of citizens at Alegheny City Hall to-night to take action on the charter legislation

A special meeting of the Allegheny Poor Board was held last night to discuss the charter, but it was decided to postpone ac-tion until after the meeting of Councils.

AN INDIAN MISSION.

A CABLE ROAD ON PAPER.

A Shrewd Real Estate Man Who Wants to Build a Road to Wilkinsburg to Room His Property Along the Line. There is a real estate man in Pittsburg who is a hustler. He has a scheme to build a cable road from the Point to Wilkinsburg, a distance of ten miles or more. His purpose is to boom a lot of real estate lying somewhere between the two rivers, and bounded on the east by the Wilkinsburg gas well.

This shrewd agent even went so far as to employ Selwyn Taylor, a prominent civil engineer, to draw up the plans. The latter gentleman did so on a huge sheet of paper. and verily, it must be confessed, that the road looks pretty enough on parchment. Mr. Taylor, however, was careful to tell another real estate man, who let a reporter into the secret, that he did not think the road was practicable. "But then," he added, "my employer is a pushing fellow, and will apply for a charter next week."

According to the proposed plans, which have been worked out in detail, the cable oad will come down Third avenue, make the loop on Liberty street, go up Fourth avenue to Ross street. From that point by way of Old avenue the road will strike Forbes street, and continue in that direction, running for a short distance over the Fifth venue track until Morgan street is reached Then the line will turn up Breed's Hill road to Stanton avenue, and striking the country beyond will make the grand turn in Wil-

This is the road in embryo which Mr. Taylor has worked out for the real estate agent. It remains to be seen how much it will boom the property.

HE LACKED ARMS.

But He Owne a Sugar Plantation That Yield

Plenty of Money. Charles Gay, of New Orleans, a wealthy sugar planter, was at the Union station last night bound for Washington. Both his arms were cut off, and his daughter traveled with him to care for him.

Mr. Gay stated that the sugar crop was good, but the growers are not in league with the trust. The manufacturers prefer to have the tariff on sugar maintained rather than see the bonded system adopted. IN O

Allegheny City Retuses to Pay for Such Canvass.

In Allegheny Councils last night the Finance Committee returned affirmatively the ordinance for taking a census of the city, providing for a Superintendent of weight and will give better service than low-Census and the necessary assistants, at a cost not to exceed $1,000. Dr. Gillifred moved to indefinitely postpone, which was carried by a vote of 11 ayes to 10 noes.
